

Fraser Valley Brain Injury Association:

SNOWFLAKES ARE LIKE BRAIN INJURIES. NO

TWO ARE ALIKE.

On their own, snowflakes are unique and fragile. It's when they come together to form snowballs that they become strong and resilient.

Brain Injuries are a lot like snowflakes. No two are alike and by themselves, people are fragile after a brain injury. It's hard to recover on your own.

Fraser Valley Brain Injury Association gives people who have had an acquired brain injury a chance to learn, grow and share their skills with each other through drop in programs, support groups, health and wellness activities, art and photography, etc. When they come together, they become stronger.

This snowflake tree celebrates the incredible determination of survivors of acquired brain injury and their ability to find strength through their relationships with one another.

Contact Fraser Valley Brain Injury Association for more information at info@fvbia.org or 604-557-1913. www.fvbia.org